

Water means the world to us

Where am I going?
I don't know.
All around the world,
through the rain and snow.

To greet the hopeless people,
kids dying every day.
I have to save their lives –
that's why I'm on the way.

First I'll stop in Africa
to fill their dry river beds,
top up their empty glasses,
quench their thirst and go ahead.

Next I will help the animals
searching for a drop or two of crystal clear, refreshing water
that is nothing but blue.

I believe that you can also help.
So please, try to make an effort.
Every drop of water is precious –
let's make it cleaner and better.

Stop polluting, let's work together.
Remember, water matters.
From now on – no toxic waste, sewage or sandwich wrappers.

Water means the world to us –
so come and help, don't make a fuss.
